

MAKING FLYING MORE SUSTAINABLE

AMBITION

WHAT IS SAF?

SAF is made from renewable sources like used cooking oil and a durable substitute to fossil fuel. It blends perfectly with conventional jet fuel and fits all engines of all aircraft, without impacting current processes or operations. By proactively reducing emissions by at least 75% compared to fossil fuel, SAF contributes to a circular economy. In our commitment to reduce our carbon footprint, Air France KLM Martinair Cargo only uses SAF that is truly sustainable and certified as such.

IMPACT

WHY WORK TOGETHER?

Today, less than 0.1% of the roughly 300 million tons of jet fuel used by commercial airlines is SAF. To make a significant impact on aviation's overall carbon emissions, we need your support. Only together, we can stimulate demand, lower prices and bring sustainable aviation closer. Together, we can lay the foundation for sustainable air freight, and therefore for the future of flying.

Sustainable Aviation Fuel (SAF) is one of the keys to reducing our carbon footprint, but it is not yet available on a large scale. Join us today in accelerating the usage and production – and contribute to the future of flying.
